Authors (“the Author(s)”)

The Japan Society for Cell Biology (the “Society”) will consider publishing the Article in Cell Structure and Function (“the Journal”) pursuant to the terms below.

The Authors grant to the Society the right and a worldwide, irrevocable license to:

- 1) Publish, disseminate, copy, display and store the Article in all forms and all media (now or at any future time);
- 2) Create any translations, extracts or derivative works based on the Article and exercise all of the rights set forth in (1) above in such translations, extracts and derivatives; and
- 3) Sublicense others to do all or any of (1) and (2) above.

The Society will license your work under a Creative Commons CC BY (Attribution) license. This license lets others distribute, remix, tweak, and build upon the Article, even commercially, as long as they credit the Authors for the original creation (see <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>).

Terms

1. The Authors warrant that:

- (a) The Author signing this Agreement has been authorized by all the Authors to enter into this Agreement.
- (b) The article is original, is not under consideration in any other journal, and does not infringe on existing copyright or other third-party rights.
- (c) The Author(s) are the sole Author(s) and sole owners of the copyright in the Article. If material from other sources is included in the Article, then appropriate permissions have been obtained and are attached to this license.
- (d) Due care has been taken with the preparation of the Article to ensure its integrity, that the facts presented are true and accurate, and that nothing in the Article is obscene, defamatory, libellous or violates any right of privacy.

2. This Agreement shall be interpreted and governed in accordance with the laws of Japan.

Notes on re-use, copyright and the license to publish

As an aid to authors of Cell Structure and Function, we provide brief details about the rights of authors and Creative Commons licenses. This information does not constitute legal advice.

Authors retain the copyright in their Article and grant the Japan Society of Cell Biology a license to publish, print, distribute and otherwise use the Article. Authors (and others, of course) must still appropriately acknowledge the published Article in Cell Structure and Function when the Article is reproduced in whole or in part.

Authors retain many (non-exclusive) rights, such as reproducing their Article in course materials, books or book chapters; posting copies of the Article on institutional or other websites; and reusing tables, figures and supplementary material from the Article. In all cases, the user must provide appropriate attribution by acknowledging the original Article in Cell Structure and Function.

We encourage Authors to deposit their Article in relevant institutional repositories and in PubMed Central under the guidelines herein.

The Creative Commons website contains detailed information about users' rights your article. We reproduce these below (with minor edits to put in the context of the user):

Attribution 4.0 International (CC BY 4.0)

Users are free to:

- Share — copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format
- Adapt — remix, transform, and build upon the material
- for any purpose, even commercially.

You cannot revoke these freedoms as long as you follow the license terms.

Under the following terms:

- Attribution — Users must give appropriate credit, provide a link to the license, and indicate if changes were made. Users may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests that you endorse the users or their use.
- No additional restrictions — Users may not apply legal terms or technological measures that legally restrict others from doing anything the license permits.

Note there are also exceptions, limitations and various other details that are available here and the full license is available here.
